

PACIFIC COAST
FARMERS' MARKET
ASSOCIATION

SAUTÉED GAI LAN

Gai lan, or Chinese broccoli, has a lovely, mildly bitter, taste that's perfect when sauteed.

00 HR 35 MINS

Serves 4

Featuring

Her Farms
Valley Bee Farm
Franklin Thor Farms

INGREDIENTS

2 medium cloves of garlic, chopped or sliced

1 cup gai lan, chopped into bite-sized pieces

2 teaspoons oyster sauce

1 tablespoon cooking oil

Salt to taste The measurements above yield a tasty dish, but feel free to use more garlic, less oyster sauce or whatever combination tastes best to you! Salting AFTER the oyster sauce addition is critical, as most oyster sauces contain a lot of sodium.

METHOD

Wash the gai lan, shake dry and chop into bite sized pieces. Then peel and chop garlic. Warm a pan and add the oil. When the oil is warm, add the greens and garlic together.

Sauté and stir until the stems are a desirable texture, not too tough but not mushy, 5-7 Minutes at medium heat. Turn the heat off and stir in the oyster sauce. Salt if desired and serve.